Juice

HOW MUCH IS TOO MUCH?

Juice tastes great and is fun to drink. It is a good source of Vitamin C. BUT, juice contains a lot of sugar and calories. That is why it's not good to drink too much.

TOO MUCH JUICE CAN CAUSE:

weight gain

poor appetite

cramps and gas

tooth decay

Infants do not need juice. For infants older than 6 months offer mashed or pureed fruit. Children, 1 year and older only need 4-6 ounces each day. Women should only drink 4-8 ounces.

Juice is part of a healthy diet...just don't drink too much!

Tips for drinking the right amount of juice...

1. Eat more fruit
2. Drink water between meals
3. Drink juice with a meal
4. Put juice in a cup without a lid for children
5. Mix juice with water
6. Make drinking water fun by adding fruit slices, ice, or using a special cup

Juice can cause tooth decay because it contains natural sugar from fruit. It is not a good idea to let your child continually sip on a cup of juice because the sugar in the juice will continually be on their teeth. Offer juice with a meal and then take the cup away when the meal is finished. This will help to prevent tooth decay.
